Rev. Joy Cowan serves two congregations: Heritage United Church in Regina and St. Andrew's United Church in Lumsden. She was ordained in 2019 by Shining Waters Regional Council in Ontario, after attending Emmanuel College within the University of Toronto to receive her Masters of Divinity. Her thesis focused on how to cultivate a compassionate, liberative, and inclusive church community so that all may feel safe, supported, and seen as they travel along their spiritual journeys. To borrow a line from her writing, it's about "how churches can build 'containers' which are relational covenants that provide a framework for effective and transformative congregational dialogue, relationship-building, daring action-taking, and spiritual growth."

Prior to entering ministry, Rev. Joy was a licensed Naturopathic Doctor for twelve years, and an Instructor and Clinic Supervisor at the Canadian College of Naturopathic Medicine. Five words to describe Rev. Joy are: Queer. Joyful. Quirky. Neurospicy. Spiritual.
